Jennifer Glueck Bezosa is a leadership coach who works with executives to hone their individual leadership style and strengths. Creative, approachable and a deep listener, while also direct and driven to results, Jennifer supports her clients in gaining greater self awareness, enhancing their leadership mindset, and gaining positive traction on desired changes.

Clients turn to Jennifer with the following goals for coaching and leadership development programs:

- Building leadership self-awareness and confidence
- Enhancing team engagement, team dynamics and relationships
- Honing executive presence and communication impact
- Managing leadership and role transition
- Optimizing personal effectiveness and resilience

Having worked for and with a variety of for profit and not for profit mission driven organizations, including General Electric, Towers Perrin, Experian CheetahMail, Visiting Nurse Service of New York, the Broad Foundation and the New York City Department of Education, Jennifer has designed, facilitated and coached for a number of high potential leadership development programs. In addition, she has led large-scale employee engagement initiatives and worked on a variety of talent development and organizational culture initiatives and coached leaders in middle and senior levels at the aforementioned organizations.

Jennifer holds an MA in Social-Organizational Psychology from Columbia University and a BA with honors in Humanities and Psychology from Stanford University. She has completed executive coaching coursework through New York University and Dale Carnegie. In addition, she is certified in the Center for Creative Leadership's 360-degree feedback assessment suite, the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator (MBTI) and the FIRO-B. She is a member of the International Coaching Federation.

Jennifer's personal quest is to live and work creatively in all things. Jennifer loves spending time with her family and friends, cooking without recipes and discovering new sites and adventures in New York City. A native Californian and former competitive volleyball and field hockey player, you may find her running to Pandora music along the East River.
